

THE MCDONOUGH MUSEUM

Founded in 1991, The McDonough Museum of Youngstown State University stands as a testament to Modernist Design in its simplicity and sensitivity to the internationally known architects Gwathmey Siegel & Associates. The Museum “seamlessly blends into the urban fabric.” The interior galleries and transitional areas are lit by skylights that offer, on their own, shifting aesthetic experiences for the visitor, and appear from the outside as sculptural elements within the overall design. This discrete and elegantly ordered space, by virtue of its inherent beauty and openness, offers unique opportunities for event design. Event space options range from classroom space, to a modern gallery, to transitional areas.
